I read the letter three times, but you read it, and you will agree with me that it is almost too good to be true." This is what the letter said:

"Office of Pelham's Pharmacy, 24 Patton avenue, Asheville, N. C., Sept. 12, 1894. Gentlemen—My little boy, now 8 years, began chewing tobacco when three years old by the advice of our family physician, in the place of stronger stimulants. Four or five weeks ago I began giving him No-To-Bac, which I bought at Pelham's Pharmacy, and to my great surprise, and, it is needless to say, my delight, No-To-Bac completely cured him. He does not seem to care for tobacco and is very much improved in health, eats heartily and has a much better color.

Lord Rosebery's Kindness.

A pretty instance of Lord Rosebery's thoughtfulness must not pass unrecorded. On his way back from Cardiff to London he espied on the Swindon platform, during a ten minutes' halt, a poor little child, sobbing as if her heart would break. He got out and asked what was the matter. "I want to go to Bradford," was the piteous cry; so Lord Roseberry coaxed the grief-laden little creature till he elicited from her the tale of her woes. She had been sent alone on a long journey, had passed the junction where she should have changed, and was stranded hundreds of miles from her destination. Needless to say, she went on her right way with full purse and light heart under the special charge of the guard .-London Lady.

Awful Carnage Done by a Cyclone in Sioux County.

Pounced Like a Tiger Upon Its Prey.

From Two Hundred to Three Hundred Lives Lont-Fair Villages and Fer-tile Fields Devastated-Schoolhouses in the Path of the Storm, and Teach ere and Papile Annihilated-Wires Down and Tracks Washed Out-Rescuing Parties Work in a Wild Revel of Wind, Rain and Lightning.

Preceded only by a clouded afternoon, unaccompanied by the usual awful pho-nomena of funnel-shaped clouds and greenish, copper-colored sky, but attended by electric discharge of dire fatality, a cyclone swept over Sioux County, Iowa, Friday afternoon, killing scores of people and devastating a vast and fertile region. The storm originated near Sioux Center, and passed from southwest to northeast.

Probably two hundred people were killed.

A pitiful feature of the disaster is the number of youthful lives crushed out by the cruel wind. Four school houses near Sioux Center were destroyed, while school was in progress, and at each one from three to ten children were killed or injured. Many of the children were killed or injured. Many of the children were carried from a quarter to half a mile before they were dropped. Two little daughters of John Koster, a farmer near Sloux Center, were picked up as they were leaving the school house and dashed into a wire fence and both were killed. Two sons of C. H. Haggie, at the same school house, had their legs broken and received other injuries, from which they will die. Mr. Haggie's house is near the school, and, although he escaped, his daughter was so badly injured that she cannot live. The parents of many of the children escaped the storm, and were nearly frantic with anxiety to learn whether their little ones are dead or alive.

The towns of Sioux Center, Ireton, Orange City, Perkins, Doon, Hull, Sheldon, Alton, Ashton, Sibley and Le Mars were almost directly in the path of the cyclone. Fatalities were at once reported from Sioux Center, Ireton, Orange City and Perkins. How many of the thrifty country folk on the busy farms between these little towns met death in the rushing wind

The cyclone was followed by a furious venture out at all, those of the aristocwind and rain storm, which had not abated in violence at midnight. Wires were completely stripped from the posts, and in some places posts were all taken from the ground. Horses, cattle and vehicles were nurled through the air like chaff, and the country for three-quarters of a mile wide and many miles in extent is entirely

Where had stood fine residences could be found nothing but a cellar hole and in some cases a few twisted timbers, while strewn on the ground were portions of the buildings and furniture, bearing not the least semblance of their original form and useless except for kindling. Fields and useless except for kindling. Fields no purpose of aggression, or of securing that were beautiful as green carpets with a foothold in Nicaragua. The only purthe sprouting grain are now as bare as in the bleak months of winter. Trees are uprooted and all is desolation along the trail of the destroyer. Sloux Center, a small town forty-five miles north of Sioux City, was first to report the disaster. The first news was re-ceived by the Sioux City and Northern Railway from its agents at Sioux Center. The dispatch read:

"Cyclone passed one mile northwest of good tives. School house near town blown tives. down, teacher and several children killed and many injured. Exact number and names have not yet been learned. Whole country in the track of the storm devastated. Sioux City and Northern tracks between Perkins and Doon washed out for several miles."

One man arrived in Sioux Center late in the evening; he reported that his house was blown away and his family killed. He himself escaped and says that at least 200 or 300 people must have been killed. Parties were sent out from Hull. Sioux Center and Orange City, but their work was carried on in total darkness and in the midst of a tremendous wind and rain Probably Wiped Out.

Perkins, a small town between Sioux Center and Doon, was directly in the path of the storm and was almost entirely wiped out. With wires all down, tracks washed out and the roads full of debris, it was no easy matter to reach it. Phy-sicians set out from Hull, Orange City and Sioux Center, but met with every conceivable obstacle in their effort to reach the scene of the storm.

TERRIBLE HAVOC WROUGHT IN KANSAS.

Ten Persons Are Killed and Many Injured in the Vicinity of Halstead-Property Loss Will Be Large-Children Narrowly Escape.

Farmhouses Leveled.

Wednesday afternoon a fearful cyclone devastated a strip of country several hundred yards wide and at least sixteen miles in length in the vicinity of Halstead, Kan., killing ten persons outright and seriously injuring several others, while many have received slight injuries. The cyclone struck the house of Mrs. Frye, a widow, who lived about nine miles southwest of Halstead, completely destroying it and slightly injuring Mrs. Frye. It picked up the house of John Schultzback and carried it away. The fine two-story house of Joseph Weir was entirely swept away, killing Mrs. Joseph Weir, Grace Weir, aged 11; Herman Weir, aged 5, and a five-weeks-old baby. Mr. Weir had previously left the house, and when the cyclone struck was about fifty yards away. He clung to a tree, fifty yards away. He clung to a tree, but was badly injured by flying debris and will die. Joseph Weir, Jr., and sister, Maud Weir, the only ones in the family who took to the cellar, escaped with only slight injuries.

The home of E. C. Caldwell, which was sixty yards west of the Weir's, was unroofed and the side torn away. The family escaped by taking to the cellar. The next house in the path of the storm was William Armstrong's, which was completely wiped from the face of the earth. Mr. Armstrong was killed, Mrs. Armstrong seriously and perhaps fatally injured, and Grandma Chapin, who was

About 100 yards east of the Armstron house the large two-story residence of B. E. Frizzen was picked up, as was also a large two-story house of J. F. Frizzell, across the road, and both, together with all the outbuildings, were completely swept away, leaving only enough debris to show that a house had stood there. The families of both the Frizzells escaped uninjured. Spencer Ross' house was in the line of the tornado, and was carried away, as were also the houses of A. S. Powell, J. A. Comas, Andrew Thompson and Menno Hege. Miss Daisy Neff, at Powell's house, was badly injured, as

School Children Safe. At the Hege district school the scho children had just been dismissed. Hege saw the storm approaching, and, fearing its results, hurried the scholars to his cyclone cellar. His foresightedness vented an awful loss of life, for just as the last child had been safely stowed away in the cellar, the cyclone strack the house over them and demolished it. As it was, not one of them was even slightly injured. The fury of the storm seems to have done its worst about five miles west of Halstead. Near the Frizzell home dead cattle, horses, hogs and chickens are scattered all over the wheat

Those who first saw the disaster com ing say it made very slow progress, trav-eling not faster than a person could run. It seemed to waver first in one direction and then in another. As far as heard from, covering a distance of eighteen miles across the country from southwest to northeast, twenty residences, nearly all of them large ones, were destroyed The loss will be not less than $200,000. Nicaraguan Incident Considered Prac-

The understanding is that the British fleet will immediately withdraw from Co-It is not known what guaranty Great Britain demands for the payment of the indemnity, but it is believed in offi cial circles that the affair is practically settled. It is said in Washington that the guarantee of the payment by Nicaragua of the indemnity as required by Great Britain will be made in the amplest manner possible, so that there appears to be no further obstacle between the two countries as to a final adjustment.

From the British standpoint the ac ceptance of the compromise and the im-mediate evacuation of Corinto establishes the good faith of Great Britain in her declaration that there was no purpose of occupying territory. From the first the British authorities have assured Ambas-sador Bayard, and the latter has so advised Secretary Gresham, that there was pose, Earl Kimberley has said, was to collect a debt by such force as was necessary and then depart. Nicaragua, notwithstanding these assurances, has maintained that the collection of the $77,500 was merely a covert means of occupying her territory. This view has prevailed very widely in Washington, even in some official quarters, although the policy the Government has been to accept the good faith of Great Britain's representa-

The withdrawal of the troops from Co-rinto and the departure of the fleet would not only end all questions of British terri-torial extension in Nicaragua, but also put at rest the fears entertained that the control of the Nicaragua Canal route would be seriously affected by the prox-imity of British forces. The affair has cost Nicaragua more than the original $77,500. It was necessary to raise 3,000 extra troops at a cost of $3,000 a day. The abandonment of Corinto as a customs port has also resulted in much loss. The disturbance to business and commerce is a loss which cannot be measured in dol-

TRAIN ROBBERS' PLOT FOILED.

Result Is the Fatal Shooting of Two Men Near St. Joseph, Mo.

Two man fatally shot is the result of a frustrated attempt to rob a Burlington train coming into St. Joseph, Mo. For some days a gang of tough characters has been hanging around, and information been hanging around, and information was brought to the Burlington officials that the Omaha express was to be held up. William Hang, a hotel man, furnished the information, and the officers sent guards, who frustrated the design. Wednesday evening, while Richard Rau, an employe of Hang, was sitting in the bar of Hang's place, Thomas Farrall, one of the gang, stepped inside the door and, without a word, shot Rau through the stomach, inflicting a fatal wound. Citizens quickly gathered and captured the men after a long chase, not, however, until Farrall had been fatally shot.

mission Sunday school in one of our large cities, says the Evangelist, and spent an hour or two every Sunday afternoon with a class of little girls, poor street waifs that had been gathered in. Upon one occasion, when the last lesson had been about the ten virgins, five of whom were wise and five foolish, the teacher asked, as was her custom, who in the class could tell anything about the lesson of the pre vious Sunday. One little girl, who had never been in a Sunday school in her life until the week before, was on her feet in an instant, and said, "Please, ma'am, I ken. It was a weddin', and there was ten on 'em." And then the child stood, a touching little creature, with her pinched figure and poverty stricken dress, telling in her street dialect the whole story, no point of which she lost. Pathetic as it was, it was irresistibly funny when she closed by saying: "And them as hasn't got no oil in their lamps says to them as has to give 'em some; and them as has got oil in their lamps says to them as hasn't, 'Be off wid yez, and go to the grocery and get yer own kerosene!"

On the Way to the Cape.

A horse, an excellent steeplechaser, was once being taken from England to the Cape. The box in which it was lodged stood close to the entrance to the saloon. Thus its head was very near to the waiters as they passed to there was who thought it good fun to give the horse a hard crack on the nose every time he passed the box. The animal bore this malicious treatment patiently for a while, but one day it took its revenge. Came the waiter along from the kitchen with a dish of curry and rice in each hand, when he suddenly found himself lifted from his feet in a strong, masterful grasp, thoroughly well shaken, and then flung on to the deck amongst the savory and steaming mess that had been intended for the first-class dining table. The man left the horse severely alone ever afterward.

Lake, California, are accounted for by a scientist who advances this theory, according to the Cincinnati Enquirer: The water in the lake contains, he says, a strong solution of both borax and soda. In the water a curious specimen of grub breeds by millions. These grubs go through their various trans formations and finally emerge as shortwinged, heavy-bodied flies, very fat and oily. They live but a few days, dying and falling into the lake in such numbers as to be frequently washed ashore in layers more than a foot thick. The oily substance of the dead flies blends with the alkali of the borax and soda and the result is a layer of pure soap, corresponding in thickness to the drift strata of the dead flies, a foot deep of flies making a layer of soap nearly an inch thick. These strata, repeated year after year, have formed the celebrated "Soap Banks of Owen's Lake," where for a number of years past a large body of men have been regularly at work.
